

cherry picked 14 - a full gallery of stuff

hi friends. it's been way too long since the last cherry picked, so i'm running a double edition as my way of saying thanks for being here for a long while. this month i scanned in a bunch of my old film that had been languishing around in my pile of shame for at least a year, so i'm really behind on my backlog. it's the first of august today, so i'm working on a brand new linocut after finishing the one for july.

what have you been up to?

e100: jul 2025

tmx100: spring 2026

tmx100: mendon ponds 2026

rvp50: mendon ponds 2025

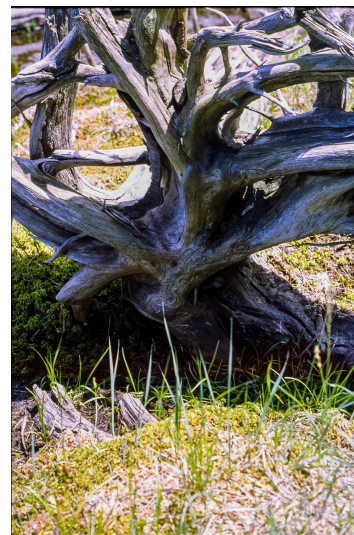

cherry picked 14 - a full gallery of stuff

pilgrim pond, 2025

xmas, 2025

these are all ektachrome, which is one of my fave film stocks. it's sad that there was a shortage this year, and it was insanely hard to find anything fresh.

cherry picked 14 - a full gallery of stuff

these are all my large format shots, taken at brandreth using the toyo omegaview and a 210mm f9 lens. i'm really proud of these and how they turned out in the end. it's definitely a huge learning curve though, but i'm getting towards the dunning kruger peak, which will be interesting...

